

Valesta as Your Functional Service Provider

Increase Efficiency with a Trusted Partner

There are many reasons for needing a functional service provider – lack of time to recruit and train, business restructuring, a temporary need for a narrow timeframe, fluctuating project sizes and business demands, or the simple desire to focus on your core areas of expertise. Whatever your situation, you want a functional service provider that you can trust, one who understands your business well and who can provide you with a team of professionals who will be the best fit for your organisation.

As an experienced functional service provider, Valesta connects pharmaceutical, clinical research, biotech and medical device life science organisations with qualified and well-trained professionals who are well trained and experienced. We take care of recruitment and management details so you can focus your energy on reaching your business goals.

Valesta offers a functional service provider option to organisations needing to staff an entire functional team of professionals. We can create a solution and contract that is tailored to your specific staffing needs, including management, training, resources management and FTEs.

Start a Relationship:

The more we get to know your organisation, the better we can anticipate and respond to your needs as your functional service provider. And the less you will need to worry about having the right people at hand to do the job. We look forward to becoming your trusted functional service provider and building a long-lasting relationship.

With Valesta as your functional service provider you can:

- > Trust that staff are experienced, well trained and fully screened
- > Save time spent on recruiting and training new staff
- > Budget a fixed cost for staff
- > Scale your workforce according to project needs
- > Monitor effectiveness through pre-defined KPIs and performance metrics
- > Benefit from shared best practices, quality standards, goals and accountability
